Extend Your Gift-giving With Food Mixes in a Jar

Anne Zander, CSU Extension Boulder County, FCS Agent

When the holiday season rolls around, many family budgets become strained. With a long list of family and friends, finding enough money to go around may be challenging.

To help reduce the stress of your next holiday season, try making gifts instead of purchasing them.

Consider these fun and economical gift ideas:

Homemade mixes in a jar

Mixes for soups and cookies are popular gift items that are fairly inexpensive to make. Preparing homemade gifts of food allows you to control the final product, the nutritional value, and the quality and quantity of the ingredients. You can limit fat, sodium, sugar, and additives in your gift jars. The person that receives your gift will appreciate the attractive and thoughtful gift and will also value the convenience of the tasty item.

Try any of these three tasty and inexpensive recipes. You can decorate the jar with fabric and a ribbon. Copy the recipe directions on a card and attach it to the jar.

Let's Talk

Bringing parents and children together to prepare nutritious food is one of the most effective ways of promoting healthy eating. The Family Matters monthly topics have been selected to encourage habits of healthy eating and physical activity so that they become part of your family's lifestyle. Your children have experienced the smells, color, and physical characteristics of a variety of foods. Continue to keep your child involved in the decision-making and being able to make their own choices about what's for dinner. Additionally, seeing them beam with pride because of being responsible for the food being served and getting complimented can and will reinforce healthy eating habits. Final thoughtcreate some food gifts in a jar with your children from the shopping, measuring the ingredients into the jars, sharing the meal.....and passing on the connection.
